

David Eagles, Director, Center for Presidential Transition, Partnership for Public Service -

David Eagles joined the Partnership in 2015 as the Director of the Center for Presidential Transition and leads the Ready to Govern initiative to assist the presidential candidates in navigating the transition process, promote presidential transition reforms, develop management recommendations for the next administration, and train political appointees to lead effectively.

David previously led strategic initiatives, operational transformations and major transitions spanning the private, public and political sectors most recently serving as Vice President and Chief of Staff at Waste Management and as a Vice President and consultant for private equity owned portfolio companies. David was a leader for the Romney presidential transition team in 2012 and was appointed in both the Bush and Obama Administrations serving at the senior executive service level and winning the distinguished service award.

David received a MPP in Business and Government from Harvard University and a BS in Finance from the University of Alabama.