

Evan Anderson is an accomplished sales professional whose approach focuses on delivering exceptional citizen experiences for customers of government agencies. He currently leads OwnBackup's public sector and higher education teams in the United States and Canada. With over 15 years of experience driving customer innovation in the public and private sectors, Evan has a diverse background and deep understanding of customer needs and preferences, which allows him to tailor solutions focused on optimal outcomes.

As a thought leader in the industry, Evan is a frequent speaker at conferences and events, sharing his insights on sales strategy, customer experience, and best practices. He is committed to making a positive impact on the world through his work and takes great pride in the role that technology can play in improving the lives of citizens everywhere.