Luke McNamara
Principal Analyst

Luke McNamara is a Principal Analyst with Mandiant Intelligence, focusing on emerging cyber threats and trends. His research has appeared in Bloomberg, CNN.com, The Hill, The Nikkei, Lawfare, and other media outlets. Luke has presented at security conferences such as RSA and Black Hat and currently hosts Mandiant's Defenders Advantage podcast.

In previous roles at FireEye, Luke led and produced research for FireEye's Strategic Analysis Team, delivering insights into macro cyber threat trends for executive clients. Before its acquisition by FireEye, Luke was an intelligence consultant and analyst at iSIGHT Partners. As a Cyber Espionage Analyst at iSIGHT Partners, his work involved tracking nation state threat activity targeting public and private sector enterprises from Russia, China, North Korea, and Iran. Prior to working in cybersecurity, he supported counterinsurgency programs in the defense sector as a contractor.

Luke McNamara is a graduate of Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs and Patrick Henry College.
