

Hugh Pyle is Product Manager at IBM Resilient. He has been with Resilient for 3 years; currently working primarily on orchestration and automation features and the developer ecosystem, and previously as manager of the US/APJ professional services team. His career includes software engineering and product management roles in security and privacy, enterprise data management, and collaboration tools.