

Ira Entis is the managing director for Strategic Solutions and Emerging Technologies at Accenture Federal Services, which includes developing and driving our technology go-to-market program, our emerging capability areas and our alliances program. Prior to joining Accenture Federal Services, he was Agilex' Chief Growth Officer, where he was responsible for strategic planning, market development and pipeline management, along with leading the Intel and Government Services Sectors, and co-founding the company's Advanced Technologies Group (ATG).

Entis has served on numerous boards of small businesses in the Washington area and on the Advisory Board of the Information Technology Services Marketing Association. He is a graduate of The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and holds a Master of Business Administration from the University of Maryland's Robert H. Smith School of Business.