Kate Zwaard is the newly the first Director of Digital Strategy at the Library of Congress. Previously, she was Chief of National Digital Initiatives where she led Library-wide crowdsourcing efforts, explored how to leverage computation to develop new knowledge from the collections, and enabled play on digital platforms.