Dr. Brian Nussbaum is an assistant professor in the College of Emergency Preparedness, Homeland Security and Cybersecurity (CEHC) at the University at Albany. He also serves as a fellow of the Cybersecurity Initiative at think tank New America, and an affiliate scholar at the Center for Internet and Society (CIS) at Stanford Law School. Prior to the University at Albany, Nussbaum served as senior intelligence analyst with the New York State Office of Counter Terrorism (OCT), a part of the New York State Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services (DHSES). He oversaw both terrorism and cyber threat analysis efforts at New York's designated fusion center, the New York State Intelligence Center (NYSIC), and helped to create NYSIC's Cyber Analysis Unit (CAU). Nussbaum received his PhD and MA in Political Science from the University at Albany and BA in Political Science from Binghamton University. His research has appeared in numerous books and in journals including Studies in Conflict and Terrorism, Global Crime, and the Journal of Cyber Policy.