

Holly St. Clair is the Chief Data Officer and Chief Digital Officer at the Executive Office of Technology Services and Security. She oversees the Digital Services department, whose mission is to leverage the best technology and information to ensure every interaction with our government is faster, easier, more meaningful and wicked awesome. Ms. St. Clair has a proven history of using data and technology in innovative ways that help people and their government interact to achieve better outcomes. Prior to joining the Commonwealth, Ms. St. Clair pioneered the use of advanced decision support tools in metropolitan Boston, managing a variety of projects that use scenarios modeling, 3D environments, community indicators, and innovative meeting formats to engage stakeholders in dialogue about policy choices.