

Kristopher Stenson is the State Records Manager at the Oregon State Archives, where he helps state and local government agencies effectively manage their records in a rapidly changing technological landscape. He is a frequent presenter at government agencies and their association meetings, focusing primarily on topics surrounding technology and electronic records. Kristopher is a strong advocate for a proactive approach to records management and archives, and is passionate about helping others get past their own technological and administrative hurdles.

Kristopher previously worked as Administrator for the Oregon Records Management Solution (ORMS) and Electronic Records Archivist for the Illinois State Archives, and has been an active member of the Council of State Archivists' State Electronic Records Initiative since its inception. He currently serves on the National Association of Government Archives and Records Administrators' Board of Directors. Kristopher holds a Master's degree in Library Science from Indiana University and a MA in History from Washington State University.
