

Mallory Barg Bulman is responsible for leading the Partnership's research and evaluation portfolios. Specifically, she is responsible for strengthening the evidence the Partnership uses to hold government leaders accountable and identifying innovation and best practices across government. She is also responsible for assessing the impact of the Partnership's programs and supporting the Partnership's continuous improvement.

Mallory has more than ten years of experience overseeing the conceptualization, design, analysis and production of quality research products designed to improve government operations. Mallory has delivered presentations before Congressional staffs, agency officials, academic leaders, and private sector officials on topics such as interagency collaboration, shared services, human capital management, organizational transformation, performance management, implementation of the GPRA Modernization Act, pandemic response, and emergency preparedness. Prior to joining the Partnership, Mallory was a Senior Analyst in the Strategic Issues team of the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), Congress' analytic and investigative arm.
