Matthew Flautt currently serves as the Chief Technology Officer of the Army Software Factory in Austin, TX. He is a native of New Orleans, LA and enlisted in the Army in August 2001. He became a Signal Corp Warrant Officer in 2007. He spent a total of 20 years in the Army, attaining the rank of Chief Warrant Officer Four by the time of his retirement. After his military service, Mr. Flautt served as a DoD contractor before accepting his current position as a Department of the Army Civilian.

Mr. Flautt held a variety of roles and assignments in the span of his military career. He served in the 82nd Airborne Division, 513th Military Intelligence Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division, 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment, 7th Special Forces Group, Army Materiel Command, and lastly the White House Communications Agency where he was the Chief of Enterprise Applications.

Mr. Flautt holds a Bachelor of the Science Degree in Computer Information Systems from Saint Leo University and a Master of Science Degree in Software Engineering from the University of West Florida. He is also a Certified Information Systems Security Professional as recognized by the International Information System Security Certification Consortium.

Mr. Flautt spent over 5 years deployed to designated combat zones in Afghanistan and Iraq. He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, and the Meritorious Service Medal. He also holds the Combat Action Badge, Presidential Service Badge, and Parachutist Badge.