

Michelle Bartoli is the Budget Officer and Chief of Budget and Finance for the United States Department of Justice, National Security Division. She currently oversees the entirety of the Division's budget formulation and execution processes, including developing annual performance budgets, managing program level budget execution, tracking personnel resources, identifying areas for modernization and business process improvement, and providing financial analysis and review. She has more than 19 years of experience in the field of government financial and resource management, budget formulation, program evaluation, and policy analysis.