

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE

Natalie Lehr-Lopez

Executive Director, DNI's Supply Chain and Counterintelligence Risk Management Task Force

Ms. Lehr-Lopez joined the newly established Task Force as a highly qualified expert (HQE). As the Executive Director for Task Force, she oversees SCRM plans and programs to ensure foundational performance and mature organizational capabilities. She also is responsible for developing department-level policies, guidance and best practices while coaching component representatives, cadre staff, and contractors.

Most recently, she is supporting the implementation of the Federal Acquisition Supply Chain Security Act. This Act sets in law the rules, regulations, and processes aimed at enhancing the security of information, communications, technology, and services (ICTS) relied upon by the federal government through reviews conducted via a whole-of-government, integrated approach.

With more than 20 years of experience as a national intelligence professional, her expertise spans both the government and commercial sectors. She has extensive cybersecurity, insider threat, and supply chain risk management experience protecting highly-regulated industries.

Natalie is recognized in industry as a thought leader in helping to solve complex network security problems as well as developing innovative methods to assess and protect specified interests and high-value intellectual property. Natalie holds a Masters degree in International Relations from Yale University.
