

Rob Ellis is a Principal Presales Solutions Engineer with Acquia, where he has served for 7 years. Focused on the public sector vertical, Rob has helped numerous Federal government agencies accelerate their adoption of open-source cloud-based technologies with Acquia's Digital Experience Platform. With a focus on technology and security, Rob helps government customers envision what is possible with the platform, and how to execute on that vision. With a Master's degree from Georgetown's Communications Culture and Technology program, and a Juris Doctorate degree from American University's Washington College of Law, Rob has a wealth of knowledge and experience that helps government agencies enhance their digital maturity and deliver upon their mission.