

Russell Castagnaro is the State of Colorado's Director of Digital Transformation. He has been tasked with championing solutions, processes, and technologies that make government more accessible, useable, and responsible to the public, business, and internal agencies.

Previously he was the CEO of Wampey, Inc a company dedicated to bringing electronic peer-to-peer payments to any business, regardless of credit, race, religion, age, origin and with or without a bank or third-party.

His experience ranges from one of the first US eCommerce applications in the 1990's to ePhilanthropy solutions to eGovernment solution portals. Throughout it all, the commerce component was always there. From 2003 through 2016 Russell headed the team that ran eHawaii.gov. His team implemented over 120 services for Hawaii State and County government that process over $2 billion per year and launched hundreds of state government websites.
