

Virginia Hill, MSW

Virginia Hill is a Program Manager for customized leadership programs at the Partnership for Public Service. Moving to the Partnership in February 2015 was a new chapter in Ginny's journey to make a positive impact on government; this time from the outside in.

In a volunteer capacity, Ginny recently finished her two-year term as the President of Young Government Leaders (YGL) National Board in Washington, DC. In this role, she represented the national organization in the media, spearheaded and participated in organizational projects, and had the privilege to speak to audiences of current and prospective government employees. As Past President, Ginny now chairs the YGL Advisory Panel.

Ginny spent more than 7 years in public service at the National Institutes of Health (NIH), first as a Presidential Management Fellow, and then finding her niche in various workforce development roles in the NIH Office of Human Resources and NIH Clinical Center. She earned her Master of Social Work degree from Louisiana State University.
