

Aisha Hasan is a health policy professional in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' (HHS) Office of the Secretary (OS). In her position, she specializes in policy development and implementation to ensure daily functionality and preparedness capabilities of the U.S. healthcare system so the system can respond during emergencies. Ms. Hasan has a range of policy experience, including public health policy, healthcare policy, and management policy. She has served in policy roles at the White House (Office of the Vice President's Office of Domestic and Economic Policy, and the Office of Management and Budget's Office of Federal Procurement Policy); HHS (National Institutes of Health, OS' Office of Intergovernmental and External Affairs, and OS' Office of the Assistant Secretary for Health); state government (Maryland Governor's StateStat Division); and nonprofits (Partnership for Public Service).

Ms. Hasan's devotion to public service reaches beyond her job functionalities. She seeks to be a public service change agent in various organizations, and has served as the President of Young Government Leaders- Bethesda and the Founding President of the University of Maryland Federal Semester Alumni group. She serves as a liaison to the University of Maryland and the federal community, and she regularly talks with prospective government employees about the benefits of government service.

Ms. Hasan earned her B.S. Cum Laude in Community Health, concentrating in health policy, from the University of Maryland, College Park. She is earning her MBA, specializing in strategic management and health care, from the University of Maryland's Robert H. Smith School of Business. She is a proud double-terp!
