

Gleason Rowe joined Corner Alliance as a Consultant in July of 2014. Passionate about government service, Gleason has experience in program management, governance, organizational development, stakeholder engagement, and strategic planning. Gleason's primary focus is striving to add value for his clients, bringing creativity and humor to his work, and ultimately, helping make the government more efficient.

Gleason has worked in various roles supporting the Department of Homeland Security for the past several years, including the Science and Technology Directorate, the Office of the Chief Readiness Support Officer, and the Office of Emergency Communications. In his work with Corner Alliance, Gleason helps leaders, teams, and organizations set and accomplish their goals. Gleason's work focuses on enhancing organizational capacity through strong leadership, transparency in decision-making, process improvement, and effectively navigating change.

Gleason grew up on Smith Mountain Lake in Southern Virginia where he lived until college. He graduated from George Mason University with a Bachelor's Degree in Global Affairs and Spanish. He now lives in an old rowhouse in northwest Washington, DC and enjoys exploring the city and its many restaurants.
