

Tom Chapin is an Principal Analyst with Open Text's Business Value Consulting (BVC) group. He is a former Navy F/A-18 Hornet pilot and 24 year retired Navy Reserve Captain. After 10 years of active duty flying, Tom transitioned to consulting to public and private sector clients while employed by System Planning Corp., Whitney, Bradley & Brown, Open Text Corp., E&Y, and IBM Global Services. He has BS from Tufts University (Psychology) and a MS from the University of Texas at Austin (Science & Technology Commercialization). He is a former adjunct professor at the University of Richmond and Virginia Commonwealth University. His current assignment with Open Text's BVC team is to help customers articulate and understand the business value of their investment in Enterprise Information Management (EIM). Tom and his wife Betsy live in Raleigh, NC where they enjoy two grown children and two grandchildren.