

Nate Tranquilli

Nathan (Nate) Tranquilli is an Assistant Director at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), where he focuses on contracting and national security acquisition issues. He joined GAO in 2008, and has since led several audits reviewing a wide range of federal contracting activities, including the government-wide category management initiative and intellectual property management at the Department of Defense (DOD). Nate has also led several audits focused on major system acquisitions at DOD and the Department of Homeland Security—such as the MQ-25 uncrewed aircraft and the National Security Cutter—as well as NASA’s management of the International Space Station National Laboratory. Nate has a Master of Arts in Security Policy Studies from the George Washington University, and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Illinois in Urbana Champaign.
